Simple Hints for Growing Prize-Winning Roses

We advise fall planting when and where possible. You should be guided by climatic conditions in your section and the experience of successful local gardeners. We usually begin shipping about October 1 and continue until April 1, but find late spring plantings do not survive the first summer as well as earlier plantings.

Any good soil in a sunny location, and away from trees and shrubbery, is right for Roses. The soil should be spaded deep—about 18 inches. Any manure used should be mixed with soil and placed within the first 9 inches at the bottom of the bed. Don't let the roots touch the manure. Fill top of bed with top soil.

Make the holes deep and large enough to receive the roots without bending. Place the plant with roots spread out, and slightly deeper than the plant grew in the nursery. Work soil in around the roots until hole is three-fourths full. Pack well and water thoroughly. When water settles, finish filling hole with loose top soil; this acts as a mulch. If fertilizer is required on the surface, spread it carefully and work into the top soil.

Should watering be required in dry weather, be sure to soak the soil thoroughly. A light sprinkling is almost useless. Good cultivation and loose top soil or a mulch of peat moss are surely as important as watering.

Foliage diseases may be controlled with Tri-ogen or its equivalent. Good sprays may be bought from your local merchant with directions on the containers.

Pruning: Prune Hybrid Tea and Hybrid Perpetual bush Roses by removing misplaced canes and old and diseased wood at the base; shorten remaining canes to desired height. To keep Tea and Polyantha bush Roses in shape, remove dead wood. Prune Hybrid Tea Climbers and Tea Climbers to remove old or diseased wood, and to keep in bounds. Prune Shrub Roses and Climbers which bloom only in the spring by removing old, weakened canes at the base, leaving the new and thrifty canes for next year's bloom. (Example, Excelsa and Banksia.) All Rose pruning should be done in the spring when buds begin to swell (about February 15 here) except Climbers and Shrub Roses that bloom only in the spring; these should be pruned in early summer, soon after they have finished blooming.

Abbreviations Used: CHT., Climbing Hybrid Tea; Flor., Floribunda; HT., Hybrid Tea; LC., Large-flowered Climber.

Floribunda Roses

This is not any particular strain of Roses, but rather a new group derived from various sources. They are strong growers, more cold-resistant than Hybrid Teas; the flowers are single to very double, borne in huge clusters throughout the season. They are most effective planted all one color in mass plantings or as informal borders and hedges.

Price, except as noted, best-grade, 2-yr. plants, 75c each; any 3 for $2.00; $6.50 for 10; $60.00 per 100

D. T. Poulsen. Shapely, semi-double flowers of deep crimson. Profuse-blooming, strong, bushy plant.
Else Poulsen. Flowers medium size, semi-double, open, very lasting, slightly fragrant, bright rose-pink, borne in clusters on long stems.

Floradora. One of the most satisfactory and spectacular of the Floribundas. An eye-catching scarlet-red. Always in bloom. Height 24 to 30 inches. $1.00 each; 3 for $2.50; $8.15 for 10.

Gruss an Aachen. Large, double flowers of Hybrid Tea quality, in clusters. Flesh-pink and salmon-yellow.

Improved Lafayette. Semi-double, open, slightly fragrant; deep glowing red, suffused with vivid crimson. Vigorous; bushy.

Kirsten Poulsen. Medium-sized, bright scarlet flower, single, open, lasting, slightly fragrant, borne in clusters on long stems. Vigorous, bushy plant that blooms profusely during the entire season. Foliage light green.

Mrs. R. M. Finch. Double, rosy pink flowers, 2 inches in diameter, that make a fine big cluster. Bushy, profuse bloomer.

Standard Well-Known Hybrid Perpetual Roses

The origin of the Hybrid Perpetuals is not exactly known. It is attributed to crosses of Gallica and Damask, which bloom but once, with some forms of the profuse-blooming Bengal; other bloods may have been infused. Result: We have a class of sturdy Roses hardy north to the Great Lakes without protection, blooming in a wide range of colors, and repeating where the growing season is sufficiently long to permit second growth.

ROSEMONT'S Hardy Climbers, Ramblers and Pillar Roses

A Climbing Rose is a plant that, if given support, grows higher and higher, starting each year from or near the top of the previous year's growth.

A Rambler, properly speaking, has long, thin, pliable branches which if not supported, take root where they touch the ground and thus "ramble."

A Pillar Rose does not climb or "ramble", its canes are too stiff. Some are strong and self-supporting; others require a stake or some support.

Price, except as noted, best-grade, 2-yr. plants, 80c each; any 3 for $2.35; $7.50 for 10

American Pillar. Rosy pink or carmine, with white center and yellow stamens. Usually classed as a Rambler but is actually a vigorous climber.

Excelsa (Red Dorothy Perkins). Bright light crimson flowers in clusters. Rambler.

Mary Wallace. Bud long pointed; flower very large, semi-double, cupped, fragrant, warm rose-pink. Profuse seasonal bloom. Classed as large climber; actually a strong pillar or self-supporting shrub.

Mme. Gregoire Staechelin (Spanish Beauty). Bud long pointed; flower very large, of distinct form, fragrant. Delicate pink, stained crimson outside, followed by pear-shaped fruit. Long stems. Abundant-blooming climber.

Everblooming Polyantha Baby Roses

The origin of the Polyantha is not clear. It is believed to have come from the Multiflora ramblers; hence the misleading name sometimes applied to them, "Baby Ramblers." They are not ramblers in any sense of the word, but very dwarf, bushy plants, blooming in large clusters of tiny flowers. Excellent for mass planting or dwarf, informal hedges and borders.

ROSEMONT'S Select Hybrid Tea BUSH ROSES

Loosely speaking, a Hybrid Tea Rose is a cross between a Tea Rose and a Hybrid Perpetual Rose, combining the profuse repeat blooming qualities of its Tea parent with the vigor, hardiness and richer flower coloring of its Hybrid Perpetual parent. If dormant, Hybrid Tea Roses often survive zero temperatures; with proper protection, they may be wintered throughout America. All of our Hybrid Teas are repeat bloomers and have bloomed profusely one season in the nursery before being shipped.
